WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1857.

HON, JOHN WENTWORTH.—This gentleman was formerly a member of Congress from Illinois, and is now mayor of Chicago. A very serious charge is alleged against him in a telegraphic dispatch. Though we have heretofore differed and still differ with Mr. Wentworth, we do not believe that he is guilty of any such crime as is attributed to him. It is altogether improbable. Mr. W. has recently had a number of police justices and constables arraigned for alfeasance in office, and they were tried and found guilty. They offenses they had committed were so henious that some of them were seut to Bridewell, (an institution like our work-house), for six months, and in addition heavy fines were impose on them. These fellows have hosts of friends, probably holding offices, and we are inclined to believe that they have planned this trap to revenge their freinds; or probably fearing a similar fate, have conspired to deprive the Mayor of his power.

ceived another dispatch, which explains the whole matter. It seems that it was an empty mail bag, and that it found its way into Mr. Wentworth's house while a member of Congress, and in which year than last, which will make some compensation public documents had been sent to him. He had for the shortness of the growing season. The Union neglected to return it. Mr. W. was promptly dis- anticipates an average crop.

ABRIDGEMENT OF THE DEBATES IN CONGRESS. ent of this invaluable work in another column Col. Benton, in compiling it, has performed a very signal service to his countrymen. Its importance easily be overrated. It supplies a desideratum in the literature of our politics which has been long and keenly felt by active public men. Though particularly valuable to the man of affairs, it is rich in interest and instruction to every citizen. Nowhere else, indeed, can so large an amount of choice politi-cal indemation be found within the same compass. Unquestionably the abridgement is destined to become a standard work of reference. With more than ordinary fitness, it may be said that "no library is complete without it." The sole agents in this city are Crump & Welsh, Fourth street near Market.

Our St. Louis exchanges are still filled with details of the late railroad celebration in that city. On Saturday evening a large meeting was held at the Varieties theater. The house was completely packed. Mayor Wimer presided over the meeting, assisted by Henry D. Bacon, Esq., and Prof. O. M. Mitchell, as Vice Presidents. Eloquent speeches vere made by Charles D. Drake, of St. Louis; Judge Black, of Pennsylvania; Mr. Harris, M. C. of Maryland; Hon. Erastus Brooks; Mr. Phelps, Speaker of the Massachusetts House; Judge Ellis of Vincennes, and Mr. Corry, of Ohio. Mr. Bacon, Judge Douglass, and Gen. Pilcher were called out, but did not respond.

SUICIDE OF A YOUNG WOMAN.-In St. Louis on Saturday afternoon a German girl, nineteen years of age, named Catharine Mohrman, committed suicide by drowning herself in a cistern. She had been engaged to be married to a young man who died a few days before, and whose death left her with the prospect of being a mother before she was a wife. Unable to bear the mortification of her position, and the jibes and jeers of her relatives, she put a period to her existence as above.

GENERAL WALKER AT THE THEATER .- This distinguished gentleman, who is now the guest of one of our citizens, appeared upon invitation at the city theater last evening. He was welcomed upon his appearance with the utmost applause and enthusiasm. His box was beautifully surrounded by all manner of delightful and elegant flowers.

THE BINGHAM MURDER.-From the best we can learn of the particulars of the brutal murder of Bingham are about these: On Friday night last, a band of men calling themselves "Regulators," numbering about forty persons, proceeded to the house of the deceased, broke open the door, rushed in, in a body, and gathered him and took him out into the woods near by, and after tying him to a tree commenced scourging him with rods and bludgeons, and knives were also used, as gashes and bruises were upon his body and head. They continued their scourging until he sank down dying, when they fied. The deceased was soon picked up by his friends, who had by this time arrived, but oo late to render him assistance. It was about one clock in the morning when he was carried into his nouse where he died in a very short time. He, perhaps, lived about two hours after he was taken to His suffering during this time is said to his house. His su have been intense.

From the deputy Coroner, who, with his jury, held an inquest over the body on Saturday last, we learn that on examination of the body it was found to be most horribly lacerated. Not a spot that you might rest the point of your finger, but what was as black as a beef's liver, from the head down to the knee joints. Never had they looked upon a more heart-rending and brutal slaughter. Prints of the fingers in black and blue were on his neck, where the ruf-fians had seized him in the onest and crashes from fians had seized him in the onset, and gashes from knifes and bludgeons were around and on his head, penetrating his skull. To add insult to injury, they also beat and injured the deceased man's wife.

also beat and injured the deceased man's wife. It is said this was done through mistake, as they supposed it was Bingham they had hold of.

Bingham endeavored to defend himself with an axe, which he had at the head of his bed, but numbers overpowered him. It is supposed that he has wounded one of the band severely, as marks of blood were visible upon the side of a door. Never was a more brutal outrage committed in a civilized community, and we trust we may never be called upon to record another such an outrage.

munity, and we trust we may never be called upon to record another such an outrage.

The verdict of the jury was that the deceased came to his death by violence from the hands of persons unknown. No witnesses were brought before the jury to elicit facts in the case, from the fact that it was deemed inexpedient, owing to the intense excitement that prevailed in the neighborhood, and through apprehensions that those who would attempt to testify before the jury would probably receive a like treatment.—Bloomington (Ind.) "Resolved, That the Son of God was manifested for the purpose of destroying the works of the Devil, and consequently that master-piece of Satan, American slavery, must ultimately be annihilated by the truth of God's word or by the fire of His wrath." The amiable and charitable clergyman who introduced these firebrands has the satisfaction of knowing that he excited a very inflammatory debate and saw all his efforts voted down. The Convention adjourned sine die.

A dispatch from Baton Rouge, dated on the 2d.

An affray took place this afternoon at Simon's saloon, under the Harney House, between B. Chinn, of West Baton Rouge, and Col. DISGUSTING DISCOVERIES IN THE HEALTH WARDEN—BEWARE OF PORK.—In the vicinity of that portion of the Island which has been apportioned to the laying out of the Central Park, there are a number of establishments where swine are reared, and from which they are taken to be sold in the New York markets. It becoming evident to some parties that these places were not kept in a proper manner, Lient, John N. Bennet, of the Third ward police, with six of his men and three of the Health Wavdens, paid a visit to some of these establishments on Thursday last for the purpose of examining them.

The first one that was erected, and the one at which the most disgusting scenes were enacted, was the piggery located to the east of Broadway, in Fifty-minth street, and owned by one Charles Oberlander. This man raises a large number of hogs every year for the market, and has been for a long time engaged in that business. The law states that only four pigs shall be allowed on one lot, while this max had more than one hundred in a pen which measured about fifty by one hundred feet. A heap of rubbish, which had been covered by Oberlander's wife when she espied the officer, was found to contain large quantities of the intestines of animals, mixed up with other masses of putrid matter. After this was examined, the officers went all round the premises, and everywhere they went they found to nexamining more minutely everything that was seen on the ground, it was ascertained that rase with dry poulties upon them were among the lot. All kinds of fith and garbage were mixed up with them. The wife, when she was sharply questioned, reluctantly confessed that all these things were given to the pigs to eat, and that they were fed upon nothing else than this kind of stuff, and such other garbage as can be gathered throughout the city. She said that he empty of the pigs to eat, and that they were fed upon nothing else than this kind that he sold the lat for tailow, and then red his animals on whatever was remaining.

They then went to the piggery of James McCormack, on Ffity-ninh street, not far from Carman's place of business. Here they saw a number of dead dogs and dead pigs, which were given as food for the live hogs. All kinds of garbage were found round the premises, which were in an exceedingly dirty state

The next place examined was the bone-boiling shop of were found round the premises, which were in an exceedingly dirty state

The next place examined was the bone-boiling shop of Michael Bream, near the same location. A loathsome sight, but of a little diff-rent character from the others, was in waiting at this place; for upon the two boilers that contained a quantity of bones, there was a mass of worms. These worms came from the bones which were to be boiled. Fally two inches thick of them were clotted on the boilers.

In Sixty-sixth street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, they found another piggery in much the same condition as the others. It was kept by Thomas McManus. Henty of cut-up cats and dogs were thrown to the pigsher. After leaving this place, visits were made to those of Francis Kelly, Patrick Wheeling, and a number of others. In each case decayed vegetable matter and the carcasses of dead animals were seen. When they returned the result of their investigations was briefly stated to the City Inspector, Mr. Morton.

The same night, about 12 o'clock, Lieut. Bennett arrested Oberlander in the vicinity of Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue, conveying ten barrels of stuff from the New York Hospital on a cart. He was taken to the station-house and detained over night. In the morning, he was taken before Justice Osborn and fined in the sum of $10.

The load was conveyed to the dumping ground in Fifty-fourth street soon after he was arrested. The foreman at the ground said at first that he would not receive the matter contained in those barrels because it was so offensive, for he health of its inhabitants. After a little parleying, the foreman of the offal contractors consented, and the offensive matter was taken away.—N. Y. Com.

The complainants sought indemnity for three slaves killed by the explosion of a boiler in December 1855. Mr. Venable claimed for his loss (one slave) $500, and the physician's account of $9. In favor of Mr. Hair, a verdict was returned of 1,100 for one slave, and $825 for the other, with interest from date, &c.

The train on the Ohio and Mississippi road, that left St. Louis at 4 P. M. on Sunday, did not arrive in this city until 6 last evening. This was occasioned by two accidents from running over cattle—by the first a car was thrown off and by the second the engine was thrown over a bank. Last week two or three locomotives were thrown off and badly injured by the same cause. By a little cleverness among the employees, these wrecked locomotives were concealed by bush, tarpaulin, etc., so their skeletons did not startle the excursionists as they swept by the scene of the accident.—Cin. ### EVENING BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 10, 1857.

We learn from the Lafayette (Ind.) Journal that the Lafayette and Indianapolis Railroad Company has failed to pay the interest on the bonds of the city loaned to the company to aid in the construction of the road. The amount subscribed to the capital stock of the company is 2,400 shares. The failure of the railroad company to pay the interest of the bonds, due on the first of June at the Bank of America, New York, has caused considerable feeling in Lafayette. This failure imposes upon the Council of that city the necessity of taking immediate steps to protect their citizens from loss, and to avail themselves of any advantages the contract they have with the railroad company gives them.

How to KEEP Cool .- Cold water in profusion at least once a day; a light diet, including plenty of vegetables and "yarbs;" clean linen per diem, and a loose style of dress. Add an untainted conscience, "void of offence," and a modicum of claret and ice. Keep the pores open, the head cool, and the heart warm, and all will go well.

Ned Tilton, whilome stage manager here, has been presented by his Cincinnati admirers with a splendid diamond ring. He deserves to be encased in jewels, as he is a gem of a fellow.

The following we copy from a newspaper called the Spirit of the Agricultural Press, printed at West Urbana, Illinois:

THE "PAYCOCK OF AN AMERIKIN GENTLIMIN." A Washington correspondent of the Boston Courier relates the following anecdote:

"Fred Butler" is the successor of the famous "Mikey Foy." Mikey used to keep a saloon in the Capitol; he knew all the members by name; their districts and their peculiarities. "Misther Dawshon, of Georgia," he used to characterize as "the paycock of Amerikin gentlimin," because, "afther taking six oysthers and a glass of brandy and wather," Mr. Dawson would hand Mikey a gold dollar, saying "keep the change." This is what Foy called the "paycock of an American gentlimin." Butler, who knows every body of this generation, keeps a saloon on Fourteenth street. If the party "treating" be an office seeker and the party treated a man of influence, Butler asks the office-seeker—"Do ing" be an office seeker and the party treated a man of influence, Butler asks the office-seeker—"Do you want all you ax for?" If the wink is in the affirmative, Fred Butler gives the man of influence a "stunner," which is sure to secure to the office-seeker a very full hearing. This is an old way of doing things; but it is within the range of diplomacy.

THE IOWA MURDER BY THE MOB .- We find in the Lyons Mirror, of Thursday, an account of the recent lynching of Barger, by a Jackson county mob of Regulators, in which paper are also related the cause of this violence, and the particulars of the crime with which the wretched man was charged. Barger, it appears by the Mirror, went to Califoonia previous to 1854, leaving his wife and family at home. During his absence, his wife, so he charged, home. During his absence, his wife, so he charged, became improperly intimate with a neighbor named Morgan; though this charge, so industrious was Mrs. Barger, and so careful of her children, was generally disbelieved by her neighbors. On his return he treated her badly, so badly that she sued for and obtained a divorce; in the decree the children were consigned to her keeping. One morning, soon after this latter event, Mrs. B. arose from her bed, went to the front door of the house in which she was living, and was there shot dead in her tracks. A pointly rushed to her assistance and saw Barger reighbor rushed to her assistance, and saw Barger rise up, in a cloud of smoke, from a bunch of weed rise up, in a cloud of smoke, from a bunch of weeds a little distance from the fence, with a gun in his hand, with which the deed was done. He had evidently been lying in wait for his victim, because the spot in which he was concealed bore the marks of an all night's occupation, and he had made a hole in the fence through which to draw sure aim. He was at once arrested, confessed, the deed and was confined in jail. The grand jury of Jackson county soon found an indictment against him. This was in September, 1854. The case did not come up for trial until the next semi-annual term, then a change of venue was taken to Clinton county, and that the trial was again postponed for six months more. When the case was again called, his counsel was when the case was again caned, in Sometimer sick, and a third postponement was had. In September last the trial came on and the jury did not agree. It was divided—nine for conviction and agree. It was divided—nine for conviction and agree. It was divided—nine for conviction and three for acquittal. Another six months delay, followed by another trial, was the result. At the last trial, a verdict of guilty was returned, but, as it afterwards appeared that one or two of the jurymen had expressed an opinion, the verdict was set aside

Thus the matter stood at the date of the outrage with which this chapter opened. The public were thoroughly convinced of his guilt; and as his crime thoroughly convinced of his guilt; and as his crime was committed in open day, under circumstances of peculiar aggravation, there was an universal demand for his punishment. The hanging of Gifford in the same county, for the same crime, by the same men who were clamoring for Barger's blood, and the subsequent organization of a Vigilance Committee, made the storming of the Clinton jail and the accomplishment of their revenge a matter of great ease. The second prisoner, Carhl, who was taken out with Barger, is now in the Jackson county jail at Andrew. The committee let him go with the understanding that, if he was convicted and hung by the officers of the law, they would not interfere; but if he should be acquitted, and they remain unconvinced of his innocence, they would hang him "any how."

Virginia Railroad Convention.—On the 3d instant a convention favorable to a railroad on the Eastern Shore of Virginia was held at Bristol, in that State. Dr. Mallory, of Norfolk, presided. Eleven railroad corportions were represented. Resolutions were adepted favoring direct trade with Europe from a southern port. Hon. Wm. Ballard Preston was appointed to proceed to Europe to urge forward the project. He made a stirring speech, and signified his acceptance of the commission.

A WILD MAN IN MONTGOMERY COUNTY-A Monomaniac in Search of Hidden Treasure.—A correspondent in Danville, Montgomery county, sends us pondent in Danvine, noncomercy country, sensor some interesting particulars in regard to a monomaniac in that country, whom he visited last week. The man's name is George Baughman, who says he is a native of Ohio, and is about forty-three years old. His domicil, or rather lair, is about one mile south-west of Danville, and is one of Nature's own construction being nothing more than a shelving or south-west of Danville, and is one of Nature's own construction, being nothing more than a shelving or overhanging rock on Loutre river. Early in the spring of 1854, Baughman, then on his way to some of the upper counties in this State, camped for a few weeks on Loutre river. While staying there, his oxen either strayed or were stolen. He now regards his loss as a fortunate circumstance, for in searching for them through the Loutre hills, he not day came his loss as a fortunate circumstance, for mean change for them through the Loutre hills he one day came to a place which corresponded exactly with a map he had in his possession. This map was at least a hundred years old, had descended to him from an uncle who died some seventy years ago, and was a description of the hills, rock houses, &c. It appears description of the hills, rock houses, &c. It appears description of the lims, fock modess, etc. It appears from tradition that Baughman's uncle was one of a mining company, who came to this country more than a hundred years ago. In the hills they found vast heaps of gold and silver, but being driven out by the Indians, and unable to take their treasure with them, they hid it in, or under, a shelving rock, the second of a very steep hill and some 35 or on the south side of a very steep hill, and some 35 or 40 feet from its base. Here Baughman has been living and working for the last three years, and certainly exhibits commendable energy and wonder-

He has in that time dug no less than four holes in He has in that time dug no less than four holes in the solid rock, averaging about twenty-five feet in depth. He says he is now within six feet of the treasure, and by September will be in possession of millions. He has performed the whole work with an ax and a tin bucket. When our correspondent visited him, he was at dinner, which consisted of six fine hen eggs. His only earthly possession is a dog, five chickens, a bed of corn shucks on the solid rock covered with dilapidated garments, a pair of leather pants well greased and redolent with old age, and a leather hunting shirt. On ordinary subjects he is quite intelligent, and converses fluently, but when the subject of money is mentioned it is quite evident he is insane.

GIGANTIC LATD OFFICE FRAUDS .- It is perfectly notorious that nearly every man, who has any connection with a land office, lines his pockets in an incredibly short space of time. His legitimate salary and fee, which would hardly secure a livelihood, constitute but a small item of his expenditures, yet he in a short time is known as the possessor of thou-sands and tens of thousands, although he may have entered the office without a dime in his pocket. So well is tunderstood that the land offices afford the well is it understood that the land omees aftered the richest pickings to those who control them, they are now sought after by very shrewd gentlemen as the best offices in the gift of the government. The rich pickings are not confined to the principal. All the subordinates grow sleek, drive the best horses, give the best suppers, sport the richest wardrobe, and but with the best does.

The recent land sales in this State gave rise to scenes of disgraceful violence, corrupt combi-nations and practices, that show in still stronger colors the festering corruption beneath. It is under-stood that there are means by which men may secure stood that there are means by which men may seemed hand not known to those who attend the sales expecting to do business on correct principles. It is notorious that men secured lands as actual settlers, who had no title whatever to that character. It is perfectly understood that speculators have their stool pigeons who go through certain forms of pre-empting, without fulfilling a single intention of the law. It has been seen that men presenting themselves as speculators and others as settlers were able for days to defeat calca entirely, and forely activities. speculators and others as settlers were able for days to defeat sales entirely, and finally established regulations which gave them almost unlimited control of all that was subsequently done. Transactions are recited perfectly astounding in their character, and which are calculated to discourage men from attending land sales, unless they are prepared to lay aside their self-respect, and take leave of a reputation for honest, fair dealing.—Iowa Chy Rep.

[From the Liverpool Times.] LARGE SHIPMENT OF CATTLE FROM ENGLAND TO THE UNITED STATES.—An extensive and valuable consignment of breeding stock was shipped on Wednesday for Philadelphia in the ship George, Capt. Macloon. The stock comprised 32 head of short horned cattle, 3 valuable horses, 25 sheep and 25 pigs. All the animals are of the best breeds, and have been selected without regard to expense, in England, Ireland, and Scotland. The task of selection devolved on Dr. Johns, Capt. Brown, and Mr. Jacoby, who were sent over here by the Illinois Cattle Importing Association. The cattle are to be distributed exclusively in the State of Illinois, with a view to the improvement of the breeds in that State by crosses with the best blood to be obtained in this country. In proof of the value of high bred English cattle in the United States, it may be mentioned that 250 guineas was paid for one two year heifer, and that the cost of the 82 animals, including their freight and provisions to the port of destination, will not be far short of £8,000. The horses are from the best studs, and most of the cattle have taken prizes at various agricultural shows. The LARGE SHIPMENT OF CATTLE FROM ENGLAND taken prizes at various agricultural shows. The shipment is, in fact, the most valuable ever sent from this port. Excellent arrangements have been made in the vessel for the safe keeping of the stock during the voyage, and in order that they may arrive at their destination in good condition. This department was under the direction of Mr. Bell, of the Adelphi stables, who displayed his usual skill and judgment in making the necessary arrangements of the chimpent. ments for the shipment.

A Freak of Trade.—Last April a wholesale grocery house in Pittsburg, Pa., received from Nashville, Tenn., a consignment of fifty hogsheads of bacon, which was duly forwarded to and sold in this city for 11½ cents per pound. One month thereafter, the same house received an order from Nashville for bacon, and bought one hundred and twenty-seven hogsheads in Pittsburg at 12 to 12½ cts. per pound, and shipped it to Nashville according to order. Had the Nashville bacon been still attainable in this city at cost, it might have been bought and reshipped to Nashville at a prefit.—N. Y. Tribuse.

DECISIONS OF THE COURT OF APPEALS OF KENTUCKY.

SUMMER TERM, 1856. Reported by John M. Harlan, Attorney at Law, Frankfort, Kentucky.

FRANKFORT, June 9. Overton's heirs vs Overton's ex'rs, Fayette circuit. Overton's heirs vs Overton's ex'rs, Fayette circuit.

This suit was in reference to the validity of the will of John W. Overton, deceased. It originated in the Fayette county court. His heirs contested it on the ground that he was of "unsound mind" and incapacitated to make a will. The case came to the circuit court, where the will was sustained by a jury. The heirs appealed to this court, and relied upon the incapacity of the deceased as made out by the evidence, as well as upon erroneous instructions given by the circuit judge. Judge Stites delivered the opinion of the court.

evidence, as well as upon erroneous instructions given by the circuit judge. Judge Stites delivered the opinion of the court.

Held—Upon examination of all the facts and circumstances in the case (they are not set out in the opinion), the court was of opinion that the deceased was of sound mind at the date of his will. Concurring, as the court did, with the jury upon the facts of the case, the important inquiry arose as to the propriety of considering the instructions complained of by the heirs. This question is to be determined by an examination of the sections of the Revised Statutes authorizing an appeal to this court in cases of probate originating in the county court. Under sec. 28, chapter on Wills, (Rev. Stat. 698) an appeal to this court from every order admitting or rejecting a will brings before it both law and facts. If, therefore, the opinion of the Probate Court, it is obviously unnecessary to pronounce upon the correctness of the instructions allowed by the Circuit Court, for whatever view may be entertained upon that question, the jurisdiction, thus conferred, dispenses virtually with further action in the Circuit Court, beyond entering the mandate of this, rejecting or admitting the will to probate, and making the necessary directory order to the County Court having original jurisdiction. The effect of such construction will be to have such cases disposed of in this court upon the record as though here originally.

The right here claimed for this court to judge both the law and facts of the case does not apply to cases arising upon issues upon wills in suits in chancery. Such cases are, by section 38th of Chapter on Wills, exempted from the operation of the 28th section above quoted, and stand, in this court, upon the same footing with other cases. But, as above indicated, in cases of probate, originating in the County Court, and brought to this court by appeal, the like requires this court "to try both law and fact," and to determine whether or not the will to paper in dispute shall be admitted new trial.

The paper in question having, in the opinion of the court, been established as the last will of the testator Overton, the correctness or incorrectness of the instructions given in the Circuit Court need not be inquired into.

Crawford vs. Adams, &c., from Estill county Circuit.

A search warrant in the usual form was issued by a Justice of the Peace for Estill county, upon information upon oath, directed to any Constable of that county, commanding him to search "the house" of James H. Crawford for "one feather bed," charged to have been feloniculy taken'and carried away from the possession of George White, a free man of color.

The Constable, Adams, summoned several persons to assist him in the search. The search being made, a bed was found. Crawford was arrested, and the examining Court held him to bail to answer in the Circuit Court, in which court he was indicted for felony, but was acquitted of the charge by the jury.

Crawford then instituted suit against the Constable and those whom he summoned to assist him in the search, to recover damages for trespass upon his person and property.

Various questions arose on behalf of both appellant and appellees, but the only ones specifically passed upon by the court were in reference to the sufficiency of the warrant, and the extent of the protection afforded by it to the Constable and those whom he summoned to his assistance.

Judge Duvall delivered the epinion of the court.

Held, 1. That the warrant was sufficiently descriptive of the "place" to be searched, and the "thing" to be searched for.

2. Though the appellant was acquitted by the jury of the

The interest leit by our Mechanics, Manufacturers, and Inventors in this enterprise will be greatly augmented by the unusual facilities afforded them at this Exhibition in publishing their acknowledged skill all over the country through the thousands of strangers attracted here by the great National Agricultural Fair, which will be held near the city during the progress of our Exhibition. Contributions from all parts of the United States are cordially invited; and this is a most favorable opportunity to introduce evidences of skill in the industrial pursuits and the fine arts in the valley of the Mississippi.

Our Exhibition Hall is amply large, and provided with steam power and shafting. Every facility will be afforded for the advantageous display of articles offered. Articles intended for exhibition at the National Fair may be removed for that purpose, provided notice be given at the day, Aug. 11, and opened for the reception of goods Tuesday, Aug. 18, can be entered for competition on premium, but will be received for competition only. Articles designed for exhibition only will be admitted free of charge. Articles sent from a distance must be carefully packed, and directed "Kentucky Mechanics' Institute, care of Thos. ### Dr. King's Dispensary

DR. A. KING, a practitioner of New York for the last thirty years, has opened a Dispensary on Market, bet. First and Second, nearly opposite the Graham House, Louisville, for the treatment of Private Diseases, such as Gonserhous, Syphilis, and all diseases of the skin and other de rangements growing out of neglect or imperfect cure. His long experience and success enable him to act with confidence. All those who may confide their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually cured and every vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions.

STRICTURES of old or recent date effectually cured in a few days by an operation which causes no pain. Where a stricture exists, general derangement of the whole constitution must ensue, a continuance of which will bring on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and cause premature old age.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.—Particular attention will be given to this disease and all the consequences growing out of it, brought on, in many cases, by the destructive habits of in considerate youth and excessive indulgence of the passions, which undermine the constitution, rendering the subject unit for either business or society, and causing premature old age.

This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared onstrictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland Professor, Boerhave. Because of its great success in most of the European States, its introduction into the United States was intended more especially for those of our fatherland scattered here ard there over the face of this mighty country. Meeting with great success among them, I now offer it to the American public, knowing that its truly wonderful medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally instantaneous in its effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, infusing new kealth and vigor in the system.

NOTICE.—Whoever expects to find this a beverage will be disappointed; but to the sick, weak, and low spirited it will prove a grateful aromatic cordial, possessed of singular remedial properties.

CAUTION.

The great popularity of this delightful Aroma has induced many imitations, which the public should guard against purchasing. Be not persuaded to buy anything leise until you have given Boerhave's Holland Bitters a fair trial. One bottle will convince you how infinitely superior it is to all these imitations.

Some horrible disclosures have been recently made in Chicago. It appears from the report of an investigating committee that A. S. Fay, the warden, and Dr. Errin Peak, the physician of the county alms-house, and others have been engaged in disposing of the bodies of persons who died in the institution to the medical colleges of Chicago and FORGER ARRESTED .- A man named L. P. Myers was arrested on Thursday at Indianapolis, Ind., by the Chief of Police of that city. He passed a forged note, accepted by E. The suit brought by the State of Michigan against the Phœnix Bank, of the city of New York, to recover back from the bank the sum of $35,600, allowed to the bank by the old board of State Auditors, in December, 1854, in the Superior Court of the city of New York, has been decided in favor of the State.

KENTUCKY MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.-We invite attention to the advertisement of the forthcoming exhibition of the Kentucky Mechanics' Institute. which will be found in another column. Of course no one who regards his own interests, when those interests will be furthered by a representation in this exhibition, will neglect so favorable an opportunity to publish all over the country such an advertisement as the personal inspection of his articles by thousands of persons, home folks and strangers, will be. If our citizens show the proper energy and enterprise, we do not doubt that the forthcoming exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute will tend materially to the advancement of the interests of our city.

The time is rapidly approaching-let our mechanics and manufacturers, all of them, make their arrangements so as to be represented.

An Old Revolutionary Patriot Gone.—Amherst Thompson, of Peru, one of the very few relics of the Revolutionary army, died, or rather ceased to live, on Thursday last, aged 95 years. He retired in usual health at night, and before morning died, apparently without a pang. His funeral and burial were solemnized on Sunday. On the 4th of July, 1854, Col. Samuel Thompson, of the town of Amherst, now 96 years of age, met the deceased, and they "kept Independence." Friends, relatives, and recipients of bounties and pensions, they could unite with heart and soul in praises for the past and prayers for the future. The family record of the deceased shows several cases of rather interesting longevity.

Sarah Clark, wife of the deceased, was born Sarah Clark, wife of the deceased, was born August 27, 1766; died January 15, 1852, aged 86. The mother of Amherst was 87 when she died, and the mother of Mrs. Thouson was 77 when she died. Earth's remains of these four lie side by side in the burying ground at Peru. Col. Joseph Thompson, the father of Amherst, held a commission under Washington—was taken prisoner and released in an exchange, after which he did not return to the service. Subsequently he went to Ohio, and perished on the wilderness bank of the Miami, but where and when, there is no stone to tell.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican. The descendants, children, and grand-children of the deceased are numerous and are now represented in eleven States and in Canada. John Thompson, of Wall street, New York, and Captain Amherst Thompson, of that city, are sons of the deceased. The deceased was in the battle of Saratoga, and for more than thirty years has drawn a pension. He voted for Washington and Jefferson.

A New Book on Slavery,
THE CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE OF SLAVERY,
Geo. D. Armstrong, D. D., of Norfolk, Va. Pric Just received and for sale by A. DAVIDSON, m19 j&b Third street, near Market. The McLean and Pratt Mornon Tragedy.—
The wife of H. H. McLean, the killer of P. P. Pratt, the Mormon Elder, publishes in the Van Buren (Ark.) Intelligencer a letter defending the memory of the dead Mormon, calling him a variety of endearing names, and abusing her husband as an odious tyrant, who was guilty of the preposterous cruelty of objecting to her religion (Mormonism), and who would not let her bring up her lambs (children) in the faith of her heart. She writes as if sincere to the uttermost, believing Parley Pratt a murdered Saint, her husband a monster, and herself the most persecuted of women. She says she was converted to Mormonism before she met Parley the Saint. She took her children from the school-room in San Francisco and had them baptised in water by Pratt, and confirmed as members of the Church of Latter Day Saints. In justifying herself for this, she coolly says:

"If any condawn this act, let them also condewn."

she coolly says:
"If any condemn this act, let them also condemn every woman who refuses to go to perdition with her children just because her husband makes this chindren just because her husband makes this choice."

Sending her children away from her to prevent her making Mormons of them, she considered a wrong most foul and unnatural. But her husband sent her to New Orleans, where she could see her children, where she arrived two weeks after her children, where she found at her father's house, and there she was "closely guarded," and her health declined until she stole her children, but could not get away with them. Thus she speaks of St. Parley Pratt, whose attentions to her were reciprocated by her husband in a style so peculiar and efficient: "In behalf of the dead I have to testify that whatever relation existed between us was of my own seeking. When he kept house with his wife, Elizabeth, in San Francisco, I often sought his society, and if any censure me, let them censure me for the strongest impulses of my nature, which have ever prompted me to seek light and truth, despite the difficulties that might intervene between me and the object of my search.

This man was a fountain of light and intelligence, at which thousands might drink, and yet the stream flowed clear, pure, and free.

I am willing to acknowledge that I have often sought his door at the dawn of day, when his wife was sick, to take some meat, bread, and fruit, upon which they might subsist until the following morning.

men they might subsist until the following morning.

Do any blame him for being poor? Let them lay the blame upon Him who required his disciples to go with the everlasting Gospel to the nations, without purse or serip or even two coats.

Neither do I deny that I much desired from time to time, to have him entertained at our house, even as I gladly entertained my husband's brethren. We had unoccupied rooms and beds and a profusion of the good things of life, while he was poor and a stranger, and as unpopular as a certain Nazarine, who once pilgrimized through the land of Judea, and could not find a place to lay his head. Upon the same principle that I was deprived this privilege, Mary and Martha would have been punished for bathing the feet of their Lord and running to liege, Mary and Martha would have been punished for bathing the feet of their Lord and running to meet him when he returned from a mission.

That she attempted to run away with her children to Salt Lake, and was furnished by the Mormons with $100 to pay her expenses, she states, and considers that she was doing a work of righteousness. How total was her infatuation for Pratt, may be seen in the following.

I do not deny that I washed his feet, combed his hair, and often walked that he might ride. Neither do I deny visiting with him a number of families in St. Louis, who thought it a greater honor to entertain him than they would to entertain any king or potentiat him proper that the property of the service potentate living upon the earth.

I also confess that it pained me to see him in chains, and fain would I have bathed his wrists where the cursed iron chafed his skin.

But this was nothing to what I was yet to see.

Have I not seen his heart's blood dripping from the wound of the deadly knife?

Six pistol balls could not avail
To make his hely visage pale.
But the fierce and deadly knife
Picreed his heart and claimed his life.
Oh! Parley dear, we love you well,
Yea, more than mortal tongues can tell,
And we knew you'll come again;
With us to live, with Christ to reign.

Oh, God of Israel, let the cry Of Parley's blood come up on high, And let his wounds before 'hee plead, For wrath on him who did the deed. I am free to declare before angels and men that Parley P. Pratt was innocent of the charges made against him.

The most serious charge against her husband is:

H. McLean drove me from him; and that he by his

H. McLean drove me from him; and that he by his own acts blighted and consigned to eternal death all the delicate ties that existed between us, and that before Mormonism crossed our pathway.

However, without knowing it, she testifies that her husband treated her with tenderness, stating that her home was amply provided with good things—which she was so anxious to share with the Mormons—and that when she was unhappy in San Francisco, away from her children, he gave her the means to go where they were. Her prose proves her intense crazy fanaticism, and her poetry shows her to be foolish, and the effect of her epistle on all solid understandings will be to augment the sympathy which is felt for her husband.

Root Crors—Parsnips.—Except as a product of the garden, the parsnip has received but little at-tention from the American farmer, while their use has been confined almost wholly to his table. The reason for this neglect is a matter of conjecture—it cannot be on account of any peculiar difficulty in their production, for we believe them to be as easily grown as the carrot—nor because of their inferiority grown as the carrot-nor because of their inferiority to other roots for the purposes to which crops of this nature are usually designed—those most experienced in their use for stock feeding consider them superior to either the carrot or turnip—nor even on the score of profit, for they can be made to pay as well if not better than any other root. We can conceive of no or profit, for they can be made to pay as well if not better than any other root. We can conceive of no other ground upon which to base this seeming ob-jection of our agriculturists to their production than a lack of knowledge as regards their good qualities, and we hope that those who have never tasted them will now do so—will place them in the balance with similar esculents and judge for themselves as to similar esculents and judge for themselves as to similar esculents and judge for themselves as to whether they are wanting.

Like the onion, carrot, and turnip, the parsnip is a biennial; it seeds and dies in two years. It is a British plant, and is found growing wild by the wayside in calcareous soils. There is but slight difference between the garden parsnip and the wild plant—the former has smooth leaves of a light yellowish green color and the flavor of the root is milder, while the leaves of the latter are a dark green and hairy.

Of varieties Loudon gives four, the Common, Guernsey, Hollow-Crowned, and Turnip-rooted. Two only of these are recommended for culture—the only of these are recommended for culture—the Guernsey for field growth, and the Hollow-Crowned for the garden. The Guernsey grows to a large size. In its native country it is often found four feet in length, and in soils adapted to its growth averaging two feet. The Hollow Crowned is of more uniform growth, of a whiter and cleaner tuber, is better flavored than the former and at the same time possesvored than the former, and at the same time possesses equal hardiness. This variety is easily recognized by the leaves rising from a cavity in the top nized by the leaves rising from a cavity in the top or crown of the root.

The soil most genial to the parsnip is one of a sandy character, light, deep and, free from stones.

Well decomposed manure is generally applied, but when not attainable recent droppings are used ad-vantageously by burying at considerable depth. In garden culture the ground should be dug at least 20 inches deep.

inches deep.

In selecting the seed, care must be observed to procure that which is fresh—its germinating powers are much injured, if not totally ruined, when it is more than one year old. No preparation of the seed is necessary. It takes considerable time for it to sprout, but if it is fresh, the exercise of a little patience on the part of the cultivator only is needful, as no other seed is more sure of germination.— The quantity generally used is four pounds per acre. Time for sowing, as soon as the ground is in readiness. Deposit in drills, 12 to 16 inches apart, and ness. Deposit in drills, 12 to 16 inches apart, and thin out to about 8 inches. The after-culture is similar to that given to carrots—see Rural of 18th ult. One thing, however, we would impress upon the mind of the producer, viz: the necessity of keeping the land free from weeds. Success in the production of crops of this class depends very much upon the care thus given.

In the culture of this root, those who do not possess an abundance of room for storing derive considerable advantage from the fact that frost does not injure them. Remove in the fall what are needed for winter use, and store in the cellar. Those thus put away should be covered with earth, as exposure to the air or even moderate heat wilts them.

posure to the air or even moderate heat wilts them.

An analysis of the parsnip, by Hermbstadt, shows its component parts to be as follows:

Water		 												79.04
Starch and Gum
Sugar	 	 												5.05
Albumen
Salts
Loss														_

Most animals relish and do well upon this root as a food, while for milch cows and swine it is by many stock-growers considered invaluable. On the Island stock-growers considered invaluable. On the Island of Guernsey pigs are fattened almost entirely upon them, and for this purpose they are highly prized. Five or six hundred bushels is about the average production per acre. Of their market value we cannot speak definitely—a friend of ours during the past winter sold his crop in this city at 63 cents per bushel; which, at our ratio of yield, would bring from $315 to $378. In this scale of production and price, every farmer must see that their growth is profitable, and though increased attention would price, every farmer must see that their growth is profitable, and though increased attention would doubtless produce a decline in this respect, still there is a wide margin for profit. As compared with turnips, they might fall off one-half and render equal returns, and in addition, we are not aware that they are subject to disease or the attacks of insect depredators.—Rural New Yorker.
